Overpass woes

Romulus officials are still awaiting a state inspection of the deteriorating conditions of the Interstate-94 and Wayne Road overpass, the Norfolk and Southern Railroad overpass and Wayne Road in that area. City Clerk Linda Choate made her third request for such an inspection in an Aug. 31 letter to Myron Frierson of the Michigan Department of Transportation reminding him of the Aug. 8 resolution by the City Council requesting such a safety check. Murder suspect to be sentenced

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Will 15-year-old Nathan Younce, convicted of manslaughter in the shooting death of former Romulus High School football star Christopher Warren Jones, be sentenced as a juvenile or adult?

That decision will be announced Sept. 30 by Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge Gershwin Drain, following a two-day trial last week in the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice.

Drained, angered and frustrated following the trial, Mr. Jones' family members and some law enforcement officials were shocked last week with the rendering of a manslaughter conviction, rather than a first or second degree verdict.

Younce could be sentenced to spend up to 15 years in state prison and fined up to $7,500 (or both) if sentenced as an adult, officials state. But Michigan law allows Drain to sentence Younce as a juvenile, which means he would be released from juvenile detention facilities when he turns 21.

That possibility infuriates Bruce Jones, father of the murder victim. He states he will remain quiet on the issue until after the sentencing, but then vows to battle to change the state law on such sentencing procedures.

"It is extremely important that this defendant be sentenced as an adult, or he could be back on the streets at the age 21," Jones stated. "And that has me deeply concerned. I feel the state legislature needs to act so that killers cannot be tried as adults (as was Younce) and then sentenced as juveniles," he continued.

"I don't think the judge ruled properly in this case, but it is of utmost importance that Younce be sentenced as an adult for two reasons," Jones said.

"One is that he actually spend the full amount of time behind bars and the other so that he will have a public record for the rest of his natural life," Jones said.

"Juvenile records are kept secret. This murder record should not be kept from the public in the future," Jones argued.

Younce of Taylor, was convicted of manslaughter, assault with intent to do great bodily harm and felony firearm on Aug. 31 by Drain.

The judge then set Sept. 30 as sentencing day.

The verdict so angered the victim's father, he says he may not even attend the defendant's sentencing.

Jones declared hours after the manslaughter verdict was announced, "I feel our family was robbed. But what is even more important, is the implication it has for society in the future."

Young Jones was killed by a single shot fired from a .22 caliber handgun held by Younce on Feb. 22, 1994 outside old Mount Pleasant School in Romulus.

Jones had stopped at the school building about 9:10 p.m. that night to pick up his girl friend, Theresa McCarroll, who was attending adult education classes there.

Council seeks help on group homes

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

> We are not against group homes, we just want to see a fair distribution of them throughout the state.
> - Ellis Pennington

City Council members were pointed in the direction of the Michigan State Legislature rather that state health organizations for help in their battle to keep the number of group foster homes from growing any larger within city limits.

Barbara Smalley, area supervisor of the state Department of Social Services, Adult Foster Care License Division, bluntly told council members on Aug. 22 that it will take legislative action to block future group homes from opening in Romulus.

"We are not soliciting additional homes in Romulus," she said, "but we are like the Secretary of State's office and must process a license request if it is presented to us. At the present time there are no limits on the number of homes within a city."

Councilmen Noah "Pete" Bergeron and Ellis Pennington are spearheading an effort that will curtail and possibly even cut back the number of such homes within the city borders.

Bergeron in June pressed for the meeting with Smalley and other state health officials, but only Smalley and a representative from 22nd District Rep. Gregory Pitoniak's office responded to the meeting request.

City officials feel that more group homes are being located in Romulus (than other western Wayne County cities) because home purchases are cheaper than other nearby cities, and the profits made by owners of such homes are the same no matter in which city they are located.

Smalley, who said Romulus and other nearby cities were only added to her caseload in recent months, revealed she i unaware of such comparisons.

But Smalley told Romulus officials that the city has the right to file a complaint with her department if it feels the density of such homes is excessive.

Smalley said cities are notified, when someone takes out a license application for such a home and also is notified again when such a license is approved.

But she admitted some state homes do not require licensing and the general public is not aware of the different regulations involved.

Acting Mayor pro tem Randoph Gear complained "the people of Romulus are fed up" with this unequal amount of group homes.

Pointing to a map dotted with blue squares (indicating locations of group homes within the city), Gear said "we shouldn't have to put up with this."

Private citizen Mary Collins charged "the only place we don't have clusters of such homes are on the runways of Wayne Metro Airport!"

She claimed also that the home spurt is continuing "because some people are in it for the money, not humanitarian reasons."

Joel Carr, assistant school superintendent for finance and operations, told Smalley that the large base of foster group homes creates a "tremendous cost for the school district."

Carr told City Council members "the school district will work with you on this problem as we are only being reimbursed about 9 percent of our costs by the state."

Carr also explained that earlier the state paid for district vehicles (buses and vans) to transport such persons to out-of-district schools over a seven-year period. Today, we no longer get such reimbursements, he said.

Pennington told Smalley "we are not against group homes, we just want to see a fair distribution of them throughout the state."

Mayor Beverly McAnally said in the past, when the city asked for relief from such an over supply of foster homes, "we were treated as uncaring" city leaders.

"We know some such home owners are in it just for the business," McAnally said, "so we need now to know who to contact to present our case fairly."

Smalley admitted communication between the city and the state has not been the best on this matter. "But don't let past experiences block you from communicating with my department now," she stressed.

Council members expressed determination to continue pressing Smalley and state legislators until the city obtains some style of relief from the adult home problems.

Woman chases 3 intruders from home

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus police today are still hunting for a trio of "gypsy type" burglars, who injured a feisty 84-year-old Ecorse Road woman, as she chased the intruders out of her home with her cane.

The elderly victim told police she just finished watching television in her bedroom about 4 p.m. Aug. 22, when she found a pair of men walking in one of the hallways of her home.

They demanded money from her, the woman told police. She told them there was no cash in the house and began pounding one of the pair with her cane.

The taller of the men then called out, "Let's get out of here," the woman told police.

Before leaving they pushed the woman and she lost her balance and struck her head.

She was taken to Annapolis Hospital and then flown to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor for treatment of her head injury. She later was released in the care of an out-of-town relative.

Police have released a sketch of one of the suspects seen driving a new white Chrysler/Dodge/Plymouth mini-van with dark tinted windows bearing an unknown Florida license plate.

Robbery suspect

The driver was also described as being in his 30's with dark hair. Police said all three men were described as "gypsy types."

The victim also described her assailant as being in the 20-25 age range, about 5-foot-3 to 5-foot-5 inches tall, slender build and having a dark complexion.

Further information may be obtained by calling Romulus Detective Sgt. Gordon Malaniak at 942-6857 anytime between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Ex-city policeman shot

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A former Romulus police officer is recovering after being shot and critically wounded by a suicidal 19-year-old Waterford man on Aug. 22 in a Waterford store parking lot, Romulus Police Chief Robert Brown informed the City Council last week.

The officer, Sgt. David Bush, now serving with the Waterford Township Police Department, was a member of the Romulus Police Department for four years in the mid-1980s.

Bush and Waterford Police Officer Scott Thomas reportedly responded separately to a fictitious traffic accident call in a Meijer parking lot in Waterford Township about 6:20 p.m. that day.

Thomas entered the parking lot first and was alerted to a man standing near a parked car, a Waterford Police Department press release stated.

Thomas asked the bystander, later identified as Brian Keith Accord, 19, of Waterford, if he knew anything about a traffic accident.

Police said Accord (who had made the fictitious call) said "no" but then pulled out a shotgun and yelled out "you're a dead mother ----- ."

Thomas quickly ducked down in the front seat of his police cruiser and drove away, as Accord fired several other shots, Waterford police said.

Bush then pulled into the Law firm selection criticized

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A Wayne resident voiced his disapproval of a recent Wayne-Westland School board action to give a Southfield lawfirm the majority of the school cases when that firm made financial contributions to some of the board members campaigns.

"You shouldn't vote on anyone you got money from," Jim Netter said. "I see blank checks written for a legal firm that gave each one of you funding in your campaigns. There were hundreds of dollars that added up to thousands of dollars."

Although Board President Mathew McCusker admitted to a $100 donation from the Southfield firm of Collins, Blaha and Slatkin, he added that he also received contributions from the other district law firm Keller, Thoma, Schwarze, Schwarze, DuBay and Kats of Detroit.

Board Treasurer Patricia Brown, however, denied the accusations.

"I received no contributions from any of the legal firms," Brown said.

Board members selected the Southfield law firm, which has represented the district nearly 20 years, as the official legal representatives. Last year both firms handled legal matters, however, the Detroit firm has been asked to complete only the legal action presently under way.

The board rejected Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas' recommendation to approve Schwarze's firm as the official district law firm. Instead, they approved Slatkin's firm 4-1 with Board Secretary Vicky Welty and Board Vice President Richard LeBlanc absent. Trustee Laurel Raisanen objected.

"I cannot support this firm. It's too small and not as expedient as it should be," Raisanen said at an earlier meeting. "They don't have the depth or research ability needed. I think you're putting the whole school district at a tremendous risk."

However, other board members opposed Schwarze's firm, which they said represented the interests of the superintendent over that of the district and board members. The most recent action advised board members not to release individual board member evaluations of Thomas.

Slatkin's firm said the information should be released to the public, while Schwarze's firm objected to the release.

The issue came to a close with board members recent approval of a summary of Thomas' evaluation which was released earlier to the public.

Activist receives threat

Huron Township police will provide a local anti-injection well activist with special police protection, after the township homeowner received an animal's head and threatening note allegedly signed by the "KKK."

Police Chief Jim Caygill stated Tuesday afternoon that "we are taking this note seriously, since it involves vulgar tones and threats" to R.P. Lilly's family's safety.

The letter addressed to Lilly states, "We are tired of you wasting our tax money so you can be a slum lord. You are nothing more than a nigger loving hypocrite.

"It's time to retire for health reasons. If you show up at another council or zoning board meeting, next time we will deliver your wife's or one of your grandchildren's heads. KKK," the note concluded.

Caygill said the animal appears to be a bobcat from the size of its teeth.

Lilly told Caygill that on Tuesday, "I went out to the front of my home to retrieve my recycling bin.

"When I noticed a small white box on the hood of my wife's car, I opened the box (approximately 6 by 6) and observed a dead animal, believed to be a wild cat.

"I reported the incident to Officer Cady of the Huron Township Police Department about 10 a.m.," Lilly said.

Lilly, who has been a prime spokesperson in a citizen effort to block the opening of an liquid injection well, told police he feels that his actions on behalf of the citizens group are probably the reasons for the death threats.

The letter was composed of cut up letters, pasted into sentences and then copied with a commercial copier, Caygill said.

He denied a report that the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be involved in the probe at this time.

Gunman robs mini-mart

An unshaven gunman held up and robbed the woman clerk at Tina's Mini- Mart on Van Born Road last Thursday, Romulus police said.

The bandit, who reportedly wore a dark baseball cap on backwards and jeans-style jacket and pants, walked into the party store about 10:20 a.m. and asked for a generic pack of cigarettes.

Police said the intruder then demanded "Give me your money or I will blow your brains out."

When the clerk, who resides in Westland, glanced at a fellow employee, the bandit ordered "don't look at him and don't push any buttons!"

The gunman then grabbed about $200 from the register and fled from the store near the Wayne Road intersection.

parking lot and Accord directed his shooting rampage at Bush's vehicle, shooting through the car's windshield and striking Bush below the right eye, the press release stated.

Thomas turned his police car around and as he came back toward Accord, the tooth brush-chomping gunman shot and killed himself.

Bush was immediately transported to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, where he underwent emergency surgery.

Bush is a nine-year police veteran and was promoted to sergeant two years ago. He has been honored for lifesaving, bravery, meritorious service and was named "Officer of the Year" in 1987.

He is married and the father of three children.

Thomas, who was wounded in the right side of the head and right hand, was treated at North Oakland Medical Center and released.

He is an eight-year-police veteran. He is single and has a daughter.

Waterford Police Department Records Bureau Commander John Grimm said persons wishing to send letters or cards to Bush can do so by addressing them to wounded officer, in care of the Waterford Township Police Department, 2303 Crescent Lake Road, Waterford, Mich., 48329.

Inkster gunman sought

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

An 18-year-old Inkster man is being sought by Romulus police in connection with the shooting of a Romulus resident and his sister, who resides in Taylor.

Detective Sgt. Dan Snyder reported Avian Madrine Mosley is believed to be the gunman, who wounded Michael Anderson, 19, of Romulus and his sister, Shejuan, 20, of Taylor, as they sat in a vehicle parked on Beverly Road (east of Wayne Road) on Aug. 27.

Snyder said the shooting apparently followed an incident involving a radio stolen earlier in Inkster.

Mosley reportedly fired seven rounds from a 9 mm semi-automatic weapon, Snyder said, with one slug entering Anderson's right shoulder and lodging in his pelvis. He is being treated at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

His sister underwent surgery for a bullet wound of the right buttocks at Annapolis Hospital.

Mosley is described as being a light-complected Afro-American, about 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighing about 170 pounds.

Romulus Emergency Medical Technicians were summoned and Jones was taken to Annapolis Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

"One of the ironies," Jones' father said, "is that my son supported gun controls, which I do not. He was actually killed via an illegal gun."

Man charged with assault of step-daughter, niece

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 33-year-old Westland man, charged with more than 100 sexual assaults against his step-daughter and niece is scheduled for a Dec. 19 bench trial before Detroit Recorder's Judge Gershwin Drain.

Scott Alan Falkiewicz was charged with four counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC) and one count of second-degree CSC against his 11-year-old niece, who claims to have been assaulted from September 1992 to April 1994 at the family home on the 100 block of Vanilla Street, according to Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry.

> "This guy can't be trusted. He committed over a 100 acts over a period of two years.
> - Sgt. Laura Moore

After the niece spoke out about the assaults, the defendant's 10-year- old step-daughter reported that she had also been sexually abused on at least two seperate dates between August and December 1993. Falkiewicz was charged with four counts of first-degree CSC for the alleged assaults against his preteen step-daughter.

The defendant was released after posting bond and is required to have no contact with the complaintants as a condition of that bond.

According to Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore, Falkiewicz also has complaints filed against him in Dearborn and Northville for alleged CSC with his step-daughter.

The Dearborn complaint stems from alleged assaults committed at his family-owned business, Suburban Floors, located at 24522 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn, Moore said. The second complaint arises from accusations that he sexually abused his step-daughter at a Northville doctor's office which he cleaned on Sundays, the officer said.

"This guy can't be trusted. He committed over a 100 acts over a period of two years," Moore said.

These acts, the officer said, included sodomy and oral sex with the two young girls.

The defendant and his wife had a total of five children in their home, including four girls and a boy.

"We removed all five children. The 12-month-old only weighed 11 pounds," Moore said.

Accused Westland gunman receives probation sentence in area shoot out

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 52-year-old Westland man, who pleaded guilty to his part in a Feb. 19 shoot out which occurred outside the defendant's home on the 36300 block of Booth, was sentenced to one year reporting probation with the stipulation he have no contact with the other gunman and have no weapons in his home or on his person.

"The bottom line is we can't have people shooting at each other in our community. We need the weapons out of that neighborhood," Westland 18th District Judge Gail McKnight said following sentencing. "It makes it sound like we're out in the west as opposed to Westland."

McKnight said she based the sentencing on the fact that the victim must not have been seriously injured since he refused treatment after being shot and a plea agreement between the defendant and prosecutor in which George Patrick Merlino, Sr. pleaded to the reduced charge of brandishing a weapon. He was originally charged with discharge of a firearm.

The other gunman, 33-year-old Westland resident Joseph Earl Justin, pleaded guilty to the reduced misdeamor charge of possession of a loaded weapon in a motor vehicle, a crime punishable up to two years in jail. Originally charged with felonious assault, Justin will be sentenced on the possession charge Sept. 22 in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Merlino testified that he was inside the bedroom of his home around 8:20 a.m. when "a gentleman pulled up in a gray van with blue stripes yelling 'I'm gonna shoot ... George' and pulled out a 12-guage shotgun."

According to testimony, Justin began shooting toward the home and a vehicle parked in the driveway.

"My wife, Sharon, was in the front doorway ... I pushed her aside," Merlino said.

Neither Merlino nor his wife were injured during the gunfire which resulted in one slug hitting a large rock positioned between Justin and Merlino's wife and another hitting the roof, Merlino testified. However, Justin was hit with six-shot from Merlino's weapon, according to police.

Justin apparently decided to take the law into his own hands by confronting Merlino's 28-year-old son, who was allegedly threatening and harrassing him for about a month regarding a girlfriend, police said.

Justin told police his car tires were slashed and KKK (Ku Klux Klan) literature was placed on his vehicle and when he learned the 28-year-old man was allegedly responsible, Justin brought his loaded 12-gauge Remington semi-automatic shotgun to the home to "scare him," according to a statement given to police.

Justin said he sounded his car horn when he arrived and showed Merlino's wife the gun. Within seconds, Justin told police, Merlino came to the door and opened fire on the subject, shooting him twice with six shot, otherwise known as BB's.

If self-defense, Justin told police, he fired back four times with his shotgun which contained bullets, Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

Both men claimed they discharged their weapons in self-defense.

Westland man receives sentence

A serial armed robber from Westland was sentenced to serve three consecutive sentences of six to 20 years in prison for committing the robberies and three mandatory two-year sentences for each count of felony firearms.

David Michael Palmer, 30, who was charged with three local armed robberies and suspected in seven others, pleaded guilty to three counts of armed robbery and three counts of felony firearms before Detroit Recorder's Judge Maggie Drake.

According to Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe, Palmer is suspected of committing nine armed robberies in Westland since January and one in Plymouth. Palmer confessed to police that he committed the three armed robberies he was charged with, Stobbe said, including the most recent May 29 robbery at Baskin Robbins ice cream store, located at 8280 N. Merriman Road.

State incumbent draws on family support

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

The old cliche "blood is thicker than water" is a reality for one woman who depends on her family for emotional support and a lot of public relations.

Incumbent State Representative Deborah Whyman (R-Canton Township) is up for re-election in the 21st District and her whole family is helping in a grass-roots campaign to make her name known.

"My dad is one of my lead yard sign people and my grandmother is the best sealer, stuffer and labeler," said the representative. "Everyone puts in about 100 hours per week."

Whyman has more than 100 volunteers working on her campaign, but it is the dedication of her family that keeps her going.

"My mom makes phone calls, literature drops and goes door-to-door for me," said the woman, "and she buys "volunteer food" for campaign headquarters."

Margaret Whyman, Deborah's mother, insists she enjoys speaking to other people about her daughter because "Debbie is honest, works hard and knows the issues. I know that because we often discuss them as a family."

The legislator, a native of Livonia, entered the political scene after receiving a degree in informational systems at Central Michigan University. She went on to attain a master's degree in administration.

With a group of friends, Whyman traveled to Washington D.C. to lobby her elected officials and met with little success.

"I came back so frustrated, because I knew that they would do what they wanted to with no accountability to the people," she said. "So when I came back, I volunteered to work on the campaign of someone who was running against one of those elected leaders."

Although her candidate was not successful, Whyman learned about the campaign process and decided to use her knowledge to benefit a greater number of people by running for office.

"I think government is too big and takes too much money from the people," she said, "and so far, I think I've been effective in dealing with that problem."

In addition to the political scene, Whyman has another life. She can often be found spending time with her family at their remote hide-away spot or taking her mother on a weekend shopping spree.

"A lot of these things people don't see," said Robert Whyman, the candidate's father, "and these are things that make her seem more human (to other people)."

Jeff Schroder, Whyman's campaign manager, believes Whyman has no problem relating to people, however.

"Her campaign is well-stocked with volunteers," he said. "We get phone calls all the time from friends, neighbors and activists saying they want to help because they believe in Deborah. Most of the volunteers come from Canton and Belleville and are people who have gotten results when they call Deborah with a concern."

Whyman emphasized that despite the time she has spent on the campaign, her constituents will always come first. While out shaking hands and knocking on doors, she is able to talk with the people and receive their feedback - good or bad.

Editor's note: This is one of a continuing series of articles about local candidates campaigning for office in the November election. All area candidates will be featured prior to the general election.

Democratic candidate strives for safety in neighborhoods

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Sixteen- to 20-hour days are part of the normal pre-election schedule for Donna Clark, Democratic candidate for 21st District representative.

"I've been walking in the neighborhoods, visiting with organizations, making phone calls and meeting people on a one-to-one basis," said Clark who is currently serving as a Van Buren Township trustee. "Invitations are coming in now for screenings and endorsements. I'm filling out questionnaire forms and generally keeping busy most of the day with election business.

"A typical day for me would start at 6 a.m. This morning I studied some of the important issues and then looked at my schedule while I drank my coffee. I made some phone calls to coordinate my campaign and then left for my office, which just opened in Belleville Square, at 8:45. Before my 10 a.m. newspaper interview, I wrote some thank-you cards and made two or three phone calls," Clark said. "Later in the day, I have some questionnaires to mail and I'll make some calls door- to-door until it gets dark. Then, I'll go home, write some more notes, finish my work and go over the schedule for tomorrow."

Noting that meals and sleep weren't noted on the agenda, Clark said that she tries to set aside some time in the afternoon for a "decent meal" at lunch and the rest of her meals are on a hit-or-miss basis.

Clark, who is a paraprofessional with the Van Buren Public Schools took a semester-long leave of absence to work on her campaign.

"I didn't think I could do either job adequately if I tried to do both, and I didn't want to shortchange either," Clark said.

"Crime is the number one issue with people that I talk to," said the Democratic candidate. "People want safe neighborhoods. They want to feel free to walk down the streets. They are worried for their families. They want safety for their families and their homes.

"Education is also a big concern of people in the district. They are concerned about the ramifications of Proposition A. They want to know if there will be enough money for education," Clark said.

Clark said she is receiving lots of help and support from family members, particularly her husband and three daughters. Her parents are in the area for the summer and other relatives are visiting during various times to stuff envelopes, answer the phone and provide campaign assistance where ever it is needed.

"I'm known in the Belleville area. People see me in local stores, church and around town, but I have to make my name better known in Canton Township," Clark said. "I'll be visiting the board meetings in various communities, getting acquainted with the seniors and also knocking on doors throughout the district."

Clark said her interest in government began in the 1970s when she was asked to serve on the Van Buren Township Recreation Commission.

Residents oppose redistricting

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

> "There's an exodus of people moving out of fear of re-districting." - resident Bob Lyons

District residents have already begun voicing their disapproval of an expected move by the Wayne-Westland School District to redraw the boundary lines for school attendance.

"There's an exodus of people moving out of fear of re-districting. My options are private school at this point," Canton Township resident Bob Lyons said.

Blance Thomas, a Westland resident for 36 years, said she was concerned because her son bought a home near the schools he wanted his children to attend in Westland.

"My son just purchased a home in April. Now you're changing the boundaries. He's right on the boarder. Now you're telling him his kids can't go to the school he's chosen," Thomas said. "It's very unfair and you should leave the district alone."

"There's been no decision as to what border changes will be made," Board President Mathew McCusker responded.

School officials are still gathering the results of questionnaires which were distributed to community residents to solicit their ideas regarding the redistricting process.

Preliminary results reveal that the majority are in favor of saving the district money. This savings could be accomplished by initiating the middle school concept and closing some elementary schools, according to Greg Baracy, Wayne-Westland Assistant Superintendent for General Administration. The concept, if approved, would move sixth grade student to the middle school level and ninth grade students to the high school level.

Residents are, however, spilt on whether or not redistricting should be done, Baracy said.

"The community supports the district being more efficient. When it comes to redistricting, preliminary results reveal that people are somewhat spilt," Baracy said. "Any changes in attendance boundaries is one of the most difficult things any district can do. It's a very emotional topic," he added.

"There's no question if we go through with the middle school concept and redistricting, the district will be more efficient. It will leave several elementary schools far below 50-percent capacity," Baracy said.

Official survey results will be presented at the Sept. 22 regular school board meeting, according to Baracy.

ATTEST:
Edward Bivens, Jr.
Mayor

Publish: September 8, 1994

Opinion

The seat of government

Not too long ago, Mayor Edward Bivens of Inkster succumbed to an impulse which has taunted nearly every politician we know.

The 71-year-old mayor kicked a complaining, vocal, boisterous citizen right in the posterior in an effort to get to the seat of the problem. The complaint was a minor one, really, in the larger scheme of municipal problems. The man's car had been towed and he demanded some explanation from the mayor as he felt there were mitigating circumstances and that he had not been accorded reasonable treatment.

Tempers flared, as tempers do during conflicts of this type, and the mayor gave in to his basest instincts as the confrontation erupted into physical threats and contact, interrupted by another city hall employee, according to reports of the incident.

The mayor did, however, get the last word in with his well-placed kick to the gludeus maximus of his visitor--safe to say that's a vote he best not count on in any re-election bid.

But, while we certainly do not condone or support violence or physical attacks as a means to solving any dispute whatsoever--and usually consider those who do as cretins who probably need instructions in emptying sand from a shoe--we understand the mayor's frustration and his reaction.

Every so often, we hear of local officials, and local business people, who experience the most unreasonable demands, arguments and confrontations imaginable. The urge that each of them must have, every so often, to just slap the snot out of their tormentors is universal, understandable and not acceptable.

But we are reminded, by this incident, of the fact that there once was, in our society, a real common sense of negotiation and discipline. We remember a time when a good slap upside the head was considered the finest teaching method known to society. We're told that in Japan, where students excel beyond the wildest dreams of American parents, that method is still used nearly unanimously by parents to ensure that homework is properly done.

So, while the mayor was wrong--we understand the temptation and the reasoning. And we defy anyone who deals with the public on a regular basis to deny that the impulse to do the same has not tempted them.

Mayor Bivens was, by any standards, wrong in this action. But Mayor Bivens is human, as we all are, and is as subject to human emotions as the rest of us. Perhaps we would all do better to understand that mutual respect is due, even in a confrontation, to everyone. Because every once in awhile, that lack of respect may be directed at a man like Mayor Bivens–and he will return that lack of respect with an equal action or reaction.

One man's trash

Nobody wants a landfill in his backyard, right?

Well, apparently not any more.

The "not in my backyard" attitude may have prevailed in the past, but now that lucrative contracts between the landfill developers and host communities have been signed, it appears that some neighbors of the landfill communities are having second thoughts.

Since the 1980s when the landfill subject was hotly debated and vigorously protested, the officials and residents of Sumpter Township decided to "take the lemon and make lemonade out of it."

Now that the landfill is expected to bring some $2 million annually into the township treasury, other communities are experiencing second thoughts about landfills - perhaps, prompted by the green-eyed monster, greed.

Wayne County officials also voiced some second thoughts, stating that they believe the agreement between Sumpter Township and the landfill developer stipulates a maximum of 22 million cubic feet, not a minimum. If that were the case, and Sumpter Township officials do not believe it is, it would open the door for another landfill in Wayne County to fill future needs.

Resident pleads for reason

To the editor:

The Romulus City Council has spent the better part of the last year allowing our city to become more and more involved in a law suit against a business which it had previously welcomed. It has been encouraged, even forced to do so, by a local group opposed to the business and its project. I and many others have wondered where this all was leading and if there would ever be an end to this madness. Well, we finally got our answer at the last council meeting. The opponents of this project have now made it clear that it is open season not only on this but any other business that doesn't fit their image of the perfect world.

The manager of Oakite Products, a long-time member of the Romulus business community, was speaking to City Council about plans which the company has for an expansion. He was also asking for an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate, a tax abatement, as an additional incentive to making this investment possible. Regardless of how one feels about tax abatements, the man had every right to be there before council and make his presentation. What happened next, however, was both humiliating for him and embarrassing to our city.

Members of RECAP challenged the man over what materials were being stored at the facility, whether hazardous wastes were being generated, if he would be willing to drink these wastes, and finally whether Oakite intended to use the deep disposal well. What purpose was served by this harassment? Has Oakite done anything wrong? What has this community come to if a group like this is able to take advantage of virtually any meeting to advance its own narrow agenda? Personally I think these people have had more than enough opportunity to talk about their opposition to the deep well. For our City Council to allow them to begin an inquisition involving every other business in this city is against everything the people of this city stand for.

We've all had enough of this. The issue has already divided our community for too long. Let's stop this foolishness before it begins to drive away the businesses which are an integral part of what makes this community what it is.

Candidate's sign removal praised

To the editor:

I travel in my business throughout the country and in particular along the western part of it. The proliferation of political signs just amazes me. Every intersection has become a political commercial.

I suppose that these signs do have their place in the political spectrum, if managed correctly by the candidates. That is why I must compliment Mr. Trav Griffin. Mr. Griffin, I have noticed, has removed all of his signs while others still litter the roadsides. Mr. Griffin obviously has some sensitivity towards the environment and the citizens he would like to represent. With more than two months to go before the November election, do we really need those signs dominating our landscape? I would like to urge other office seekers to follow Mr. Griffin's lead.

Web of deception surrounds health

To the editor:

"Oh what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive."

That wisdom from Sir Walter Scott (1771-1832) was a sober admonition two centuries ago and remains so today. If only modern leaders could see the truth of it.

Early in 1993, President Bill Clinton appointed Hillary Rodham Clinton as chair of the Presidents Task Force on National Health Care Reform.

On March 30, 1993, Patsy Thomasson, Special Assistant to the President for Management and Administration, testified before the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government. Thomasson's written testimony read in part:

"The reason the names of the working group participants--who were all federal government employees--were not immediately released was because they were working very hard on this project and we did not want them to be harassed by lobbyists and special interest groups.." (emphasis here and below is added).

The statement continues:

"However, Ira Magziner, Senior Advisor to the President for Policy Development, manages the interdepartmental working group that is charged with gathering information and ideas for the Task Force; the working group includes more than 400 people, made up entirely of federal employees--including more than 90 Congressional staffers."

Another part reads: "The working group is made up entirely of federal employees."

To borrow the words of Ron Ziegler, President Nixon's press secretary during the Watergate era, these statements are now "inoperative." Translation--they are false.

The Clinton White House was forced by a federal judge to admit that at least 323 task force participants were not government employees, but employees of private organizations.

This admission contradicts sworn statements by Thomasson to Congress and by Magaziner to the federal court on March 3, 1993.

What difference does it make? Why do we care if private citizens served on the Clinton health task force and why are their identities important? Because federal law guarantees citizens a right to know who is drafting important legislation at public expense.

In 1972, Congress passed The Federal Advisory Committee Act (FACA) to insure the public

s right to know about the conduct of public business. There's no question that the Clinton Health Care Task Force should have abided by FACA and opened its hearing and records to the public. For more than a year, the administration refused.

Only after a civil action was filed against the task force did the administration begin to make the records public. The suit was filed by the American Council for Health Care Reform, the Association of American Physicians health Care Reform, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, and the National Legal and Policy Center.

Few recent candidates for president have beat the drum against special interests as loudly as Bill Clinton did in 1992. But in his first major legislative initiative–designed to be he centerpiece of his entire administration--Clinton collaborated in secret with dozens of health care special interests.

The smoking gun is found in court documents already turned over by the administration. Some of the 62 task force working groups had no government employees at all. Others were staffed by employees of the United Health Care, Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Aetna, Travelers, Prudential, Kaiser Permanente, US Health Care, Wausau Insurance, EDS Health Care, MCI Corporation, Price Waterhouse, Coopers & Lybrand, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, and the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation.

The list of non-government participants reads like a Who's Who of health care industry staffers. But the door was not open to everyone. It was not open to anyone who questioned the premise that government should run health care, or guarantee "universal coverage" even though that term could not be defined.

It is that critical role of special interests in drafting the Clinton plan that the administration would rather not have the American public know too much about. Because if they knew, they might start asking embarrassing questions about who drafted what parts of the bill, why they were written, and who will benefit.

That's why false statements by top Clinton aides Patsy Thomasson and Ira Magaziner are relevant an important to the health care debate.

On July 27, Rep. Jim Lightfoot (R-Iowa) and Rep. Ernest Istook (R- Okla.) wrote a letter to Attorney General Janet Reno to request appointment of a Special Counsel to investigate false statements made to Congress by Thomasson, in violation of federal law.

Reno acted prudently in seeking a special counsel to investigate gifts from Tyson Foods to Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy. She should follow the same course in the case of White House staffers who made false statements to Congress and the Federal Court on the composition of the Health Care Task Force.

Get a horse? Well, maybe

Various automotive literature from company beginnings provided colorful reading for the prospective buyer. The Detroit Automobile Company, formed in 1899, was the first auto firm with which Henry Ford was associated. Company pamphlets for the yet unannounced vehicle trumpeted the "comparative cost" of autos vs. the horse and buggy.

"The cost of an automobile," a creative Detroit Automobile Co. writer said, "and expense for running five years as compared with a horse and vehicle for the same period," (were as follows:)

Automobile:

* Original cost, $1,000
* Cost of operating, 1/4 cent per mile, or 25 cents per day, bringing the (annual) total cost to $114.
* New tires, $100.
* Repairs, $50.
* Painting (four times), $100.
* Total cost for the automobile, $1,364.

Costs of a horse and vehicle:

* Original cost of the horse, harness and vehicle, $500.
* Cost of keeping a horse stalled, $1,200.
* Shoeing, $180.
* Repairs on the vehicle (including rubber tires), $150.
* Repairs on the harness (per year), $50.
* Painting the vehicle (four times), $100.
* Bringing a total cost of $2,180 for the horse and vehicle.

"Effecting a saving of $816 in five years," according to product literature, "in favor of the automobile. At the end of five years the motor vehicle should be in good condition, owing to its careful and solid construction, while the value of the horse and carriage would be doubtful. There is always the possibility that the horse may die during the five years, while the automobile can always be repaired at nominal cost. Then, too, the automobile will do the work of three horses."

The World Moves was another effective piece of literature offered to the buying public by the Detroit Automobile Co.

"The enthusiast," so said the pamphlet, "who has dreamed of soaring through the air in a flying machine, appropriating to himself the attributes of the bird, will find his dream nearly realized on his first country trip in an automobile if he is fortunate in the selection of machine and weather.

Romulus gives new coach a big win

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus presented its rookie football coach Jim Zoltowski an impressive victory in its season opener.

Despite having two touchdowns called back on them early in the game, the Eagles managed to play over the infractions and eight other costly penalties and win their opener, 31-8, Friday night before the home crowd at the expense of Taylor Truman.

"It was a great way to start a season," said Zoltowski, who moved up to the head coaching position after former coach, Dan Henry, resigned after the 1993 campaign. "Obviously my staff and I are very pleased at the victory and our first-game performance.

"But there is still a lot of work and games ahead of us."

Romulus will be home again Friday night, hosting a Waterford Kettering team that stopped Milford Lakeland, 18-0, in their opener. Zoltowski says of their second opponent that "they have lost only six starters off of last years team, a team that would have made playoffs if they did not have a couple of ineligible players."

Romulus dominated Truman from the opening kickoff. The Eagles saw a 68-yard TD pass from quarterback Jamal McCain to flanker Mike Bell erased because of a clip, then a second TD, in the third quarter, also failed to make the scoring book because of a holding penalty. That infraction cost Eric Nunlee a 73-yard TD run.

But Nunlee, no relation to ex-Belleville great Frank Nunlee, who was an all-state performer for the Tigers who went on to star at the University of Michigan and for the San Francisco 49ers, came back and played havoc on Truman's defense.

Before the evening ended, Nunlee accounted for two TDs and 174-yards rushing.

The Eagles actually put Truman away in the second quarter when they erupted for 25-points. Their first TD was set up by Keith Miller's interception, the soph linebacker picked off the ball at the Romulus 25 and made it to midfield before Truman stopped him.

Five plays later, McCain moved the Eagles to the nine where on the sixth-play, the QB handed off to Nunlee who scored from the nine. Skip Luster booted the extra point, lifting the Eagles to a 7-0 lead.

With 1:35 remaining in the half, Tyrone Jones recovered a Truman fumble at the TT's 35 and on the first play from scrimmage McCain and Bell hooked up for a 38-yard TD

A 'Gold'en debut

Belleville speed is too much for a solid Rock club, 26-14

"We knew that they were good," said Plymouth-Salem coach Tom Moshimer, as he walked off the field at Belleville. "But they are much better than we thought they were."

From the senior football coach in the area, that's saying a lot. And he was saying it about a Belleville High football team that has its eyes on the state playoffs.

Coach Bob LaPointe's Tigers launched the 1994 season with a 26-14 victory over a solid Rock team that is considered good enough to be one of the pre-season title favorites in the tough Western Lakes Conference.

And that's sending a message to the rest of the conference.

Moshimer said he was impressed by Belleville's speed and that "they are probably the fastest team we will face all year."

That speed was personified by junior running back Ian Gold, who the Salem defense had problems stopping. Gold rushed for 149 yards on 13 carries and before he called it a night he had counted three touchdowns thanks to runs of 34, 54 and nine.

Belleville also received an exceptional effort from senior fullback Chris Cannon, who chalked up 215 yards on 21 carries and one touchdown, a 23-yarder in the fourth quarter that sealed the victory.

Salem responded with a pair of touchdowns from Mike Brannon. Mike Kley connected on both of Salem's point-afters.

Belleville got on the scoreboard in the first quarter as Gold raced off tackle from eight-yards to out the Tigers on the scoreboard. Gold's TD capped a six-play midfield series. P.K. Wilkerson kicked the extra point.

For the next quarter and a half, the name of the game was defense, and when the score changed it was Belleville that lit up the board. And, again, it was Gold who sparkled. He raced 54-yards on a sweep that lifted the Tigers to a 13-0 lead.

However, Salem refused to crumble. The Rocks came back with the next two TDs thanks to Brannon and took a 14-13 lead when Kley successfully kicked the two point afters.

In the fourth, Belleville exploded with Cannon whose three consecutive rushes culminated in a 23-yard touchdown that gave the Tigers the lead for good. Midway in the final period,

Canton comes up short, 16-13

After a disappointing season opener against Monroe Friday night, coach Bob Khoenle and the Plymouth-Canton's Chiefs will head for North Farmington on Saturday to test one of the Western Lakes crossover rivals.

Khoenle sees the matchup between the Chiefs and North as an important one for both teams.

"North Farmington has some excellent players in the skilled positions," he said. "And they are capable of beating anyone in this conference. It is going to be a tough game for us, especially since we came up short against Monroe.

Like one-yard short.

In the final 55 seconds, Canton came within a yard of erasing a 16-13 deficit but a clipping penalty nullified the pivotal play.

"Obviously, when you come that close and lose it, it hurts."

Canton blew a 13-8 lead as Brett Elledge accounted for the Chiefs' first touchdown on a 70-yard run. The Chiefs went for two, but missed going in.

Len Gardner got the second TD on a midfield, off-tackle sprint and Jeff Fliss booted the extra point.

Canton nose guard Shawn Dyer turned in a stellar performance on defense.

Wayne runs by Adrian, 32-24

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It looked easy. Too easy.

Wayne jumped all over Adrian, building up a 26-9 lead late in the third period when Coach Chuck Howton decided to get a glimpse of some of the unheralded players.

Adrian came back and put 15 points on the scoreboard in the final quarter, but Howton's Zebras held on to win their non-league opener 32-24.

And you can bet the Wayne coach will think twice before he empties his bench the next time.

That next time is Friday night when Wayne travels to Taylor Kennedy for its Mega Conference, Red Division, crossover game. Kennedy knocked off cross-town rival, Taylor Center, for its opener 14-0.

"It was a typical cross-town battle," said Howton, who scouted the game. "Kennedy is tough and we must be ready for them."

Wayne was ready for Adrian. The Zebras struck early.

After an exchange of punts, Wayne got on the scoreboard in the first quarter when Richard Rashad intercepted a misfired Adrian pass and ran it back 12 yards for the first TD.

The Zebras' first of several point-afters missed its target.

Adrian however came back and cut into Wayne's lead with a 31-yard field goal by Brian McCullough.

Three minutes into the second quarter, Wayne struck again. This time running back Stan Stevenson took a hand-off

Inkster defense jolts Buena Vista

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Is this the year of the Inkster Viking?

Coach Vic Calhoun believes so and, off of Friday night's performance at Saginaw Buena Vista, it may be that the Vikings have the ability to stand atop of the Suburban Athletic Football Conference.

"We have the talent to go all the way this year," said Calhoun, after Inkster pulled out a 6-0 defensive gem in Saginaw for an opening-game victory. "Our motto is 'Pride is Back.'"

One victory, most will agree, doesn't make a season. But if the Vikings can stop a versatile River Rouge team this Friday, Calhoun may find some believers.

Rouge lost a squeaker to Centerline, 14-6, in its season debut.

Calhoun says that the defense must stop the Panthers' running game if Inkster is to surface with its second victory in as many starts.

"They have the speed over there, but I feel we have the manpower to stop them."

Inkster scored its one and only TD in the second quarter against Buena Vista as seasoned quarterback Anthony Holt teamed up with wide receiver Leon Bouldin for a 65-yard strike. The Vikings opted to go for the two point conversion and running back Vince Lee was stopped one-yard short of the goal line.

The Vikings then successfully turned to their defense to protect their precarious lead. They received exceptional performances from their linebacking corps, led by James Outlaw, Jonathan Boatwright and William Guest.

Boatwright finished the evening with 10 tackles, one fumble recovery and one sack of the quarterback, while Guest carded seven tackles and four assists.

Calhoun also gave Jack Kelly high grades for his efforts on defense.

Holt however had difficulty finding his receivers. He completed only three of 12 passes but the three completions accounted for 115 yards and the decisive touchdown.

Inkster's defense held Buena Vista to a total of 78 yards. Inkster amassed 239 yards with Guest collecting 88 on eight rushes.

Glenn: From frying pan into grid fire

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

This just may be the year that Westland John Glenn football foes have been waiting for.

Glenn, a "AA" class state finalist - coach Chuck Gordon's Rockets lost the state title to Dearborn Fordson a year ago and finished with a 11- 2 record - was shut out 32-0 Friday night by a traditionally strong Howell in the season opener for both schools.

And that is the first time any team has blanked a Gordon-coached team in the longest time.

The Rockets couldn't mobilize their offense, although quarterback Jamie Hagelthorn saw two perfect TD tosses slip from his receivers' fingers in the second period at Howell.

And the Glenn defense - it needs a lot of work, especially against the run. Howell's senior running back Mark Eros made life miserable for the once-mighty Rockets. He rushed for 180-yards in 12 carries and four of those carries ended in touchdowns of 80-yards, 30, 20 and 22.

It will not be any easier for the Glenn this week, either. They will host Farmington Harrison at 7:30 p.m. Friday, and Harrison has one of the best running backs in the state this year in Nick Williams,

Williams, who is a 6-2, 248-pound senior that doubles as a linebacker, led Harrison to the Class A state title a year ago.

The Hawks will however be coming to town after losing a close 28-21 decision to Birmingham Brother Rice. So Harrison also will be looking for their first victory.

The outcome of the cross-over Western Lakes Conference game could tell Gordon a lot about his 1994 club.

The Schoolcraft College In[illegible] will be the first ma[illegible] of the 1994 campaign for local and area high school cross country teams.

Some 20 men and women's teams will compete Saturday morning in the annual invitational, which will be staged at the facilities of the Livonia college.

It will also mark the beginning of a new era at Belleville High where George DeVore replaces veteran track and cross country coach Dave Medley. Medley resigned after the 1993 track season to spend more time with his family.

DeVore teaches math at the high school. He has 13 experienced runners to help make life easier for him in a tough conference (Mega) where teams like state powerhouses Monroe and Fordson have dominated the trails.

DeVore has two outstanding runners in seniors Brian Mockridge and Craig Hogg, both state qualifiers a year ago. Also in the lineup are Evan Ring, Jason Newbern, Josh Bellamy, Josh Lyons and Kyle Medley, the former coach's nephew.

DeVore also will have the talents of a foreign exchange student, Rene Dera, who is spending a year at Belleville High. Dera hails from Germany.

Rounding out the Belleville lineup are Jim Benson and Aaron Lang.

Belleville, which finished in the middle of the Mega pack a year ago, will run in the shadows of the traditional powers unless the Tigers improve greatly over the coming week, according to the coach.

quarterback Sam Reid engineered a six-play drive that started at the Tigers' 13-yard line and finished with Gold's 34-yard touchdown run.

Wilkerson made good on the point after.

Belleville also got 39 yards on eight tries from their fullback Zyers Ruff, who was one of the keys in a solid Tiger defense. Reid scampered 16 yards on three attempts.

"It was a great victory for us," said Belleville coach Bob LaPointe, who will open up the Mega Conference campaign Friday night as host to Dearborn Fordson.

"This is another typical Fordson team that likes to wear you down with their strength. They are good. They will play ball control, and we're going to try to negate their aggressiveness with our speed."

Kick off in Belleville is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

With seconds left, Bell intercepted a Truman pass and carried it to the eight-yard line, but a clip returned the ball to midfield. Two plays later, McCain went to the air and this time from Miller on a 25- yard TD pass.

Romulus elected to go for the two-point conversion and failed.

A McCain to Jeremy Castle 25-yard pass accounted for Romulus's fourth- quarter touchdown.

McCain, a senior , connected on five of his 13 passes for 115 yards and three touchdowns.

Zoltowski commended the defense and singled out outside linebacker Mario Thomanson, who had 11 tackles and one sack, for his exceptional game. Miller, also a linebacker, checked in with 10 tackles, seven of them solos. Sophomore tackle Brian Tyus [illegible] tackles and two sacks.

for a 12-3 halftime score and quickly added to their lead when they returned to the field. Four minutes into the third period, Guess and flanker Richard Buford combined on a 27-yard touchdown pass.

Adrian managed to keep the outcome of the game in doubt as the Trojans came back with a seven-yard touchdown pass that featured QB Dave Brieggman and Ron Lofton.

But, with a second left in that period, Stevenson dazzled the crowd with a superlative 73-yard touchdown run with the help of some excellent blocking from Corey McClelland, Mary Myers and Rashad.

A Guess-to-Rashad pass finally gave the Zebras a two-point conversion.

With a comfortable three TD lead, Wayne began experimenting with its lineup, and it almost backfired as Adrian came back with a pair of touchdowns. Stevenson again deflated the rally as he struck for a 25- yard sprint that ended in the end zone.

Stevenson's score culminated a 60-yard drive that Guess successfully engineered.

Stevenson finished with three touchdowns for his 18 carries and 241 of Wayne's 283 yards rushing. Guess was on target with four of [illegible]sses for [illegible] yards of which [illegible]rd collected 83.

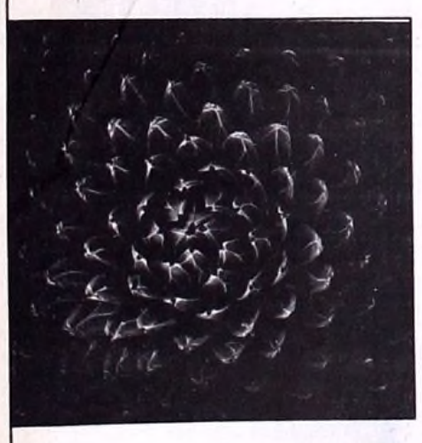
Romulus photographer Ray Rohr said he enjoys taking pictures of beautiful places and faces. ANP photo by Kimberly Woloskie

MOMENT IN TIME

Photographer captures the world in a blink of a shutter



A picture is worth a thousand words, just ask professional photographer Ray Rohr.

Rohr, a Romulus resident, travels all over the world capturing moments in time and in a way that is unforgettable.

"I like to be able to set a mood," Rohr said. "I enjoy taking pictures of a beautiful area such as the Grand Canyon or Yosemite."

Rohr recently had an exhibit of his works on display at Trappers Alley in Detroit. He said his love for the camera began in the early 1970s.

"I painted for almost 20 years before taking photographs," Rohr said. "I was about 4 years old when I first started working with various art supplies.

"I started with chalk and learned how to draw animals. Through the years, I learned how to work with pastels and charcoal. I eventually worked with oils."

Hawaiian born, Rohr has many captivating photographs describing the beauty of the paradise islands. Some of his best shots include the plumeria blossoms, a tree and lava and a fishing family.

He said it was in 1974 when he purchased his first 35 mm camera and in four years expanded into the Hasselblad medium square format system. With the new camera system, the square composition proved a natural and dynamic addition to his portfolio.

"I basically changed from painting to photography because I got good enough to realize I wasn't going to be a great painter," Rohr said. "I started shooting whenever my family went on vacation. The more pictures I took, the better I got."

Of his more than 1,000 photographs which includes exotic birds, flowers, trees and many landscapes, Rohr said he believes his best picture is of his friend, Merry.

"I have not done a lot of portrait work because trying to get the personality of a person is difficult," Rohr said. "With the picture of Merry, it just expresses everything about her. It couldn't be any better."

One of his more expressive photographs involves a cormorant bird he saw fishing for its food in Florida.

"The bird would actually dive into the water for about a minute for fish and then come back out," Rohr said. "After awhile it has to come up to dry its wings off or they will become saturated. I took the picture right when the bird came out of the water and spread its wings to dry off. It was a wonderful sight."

Rohr does his own developing, printing and matting for himself and clients. His work can be seen and purchased at the Mole Hole in Birmingham and at various galleries throughout the metropolitan area.

"The last show I had 103 photographs on display," Rohr said. "I still have film I haven't developed yet that has to be matted and framed.

"I would like to go to Europe one day and shoot the castles and flowers I've heard about. There is still time. Perhaps I will even put a book together of my photographs like Ansel Adams."

Cost for Rohr's masterpieces range anywhere from $150 to $300 depending on the picture, size and frame. Area residents interested in receiving a brochure of his photographs can send a self-addressed envelope to: Rohr, 28448 Cherry Ave., Romulus, Mich. 48174 or call (313)941-6795.

911 fee

Surcharge for emergency telephone service draws criticism

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

While the Wayne County Board of Commissioners believes the best way to fund communications improvements in the Emergency 911 system is through a telephone surcharge, some individuals criticize the surcharge as a "tax" without voter approval.

Last month, the county commissioners approved a four percent fee on phone service for Wayne County telephone subscribers, excluding residents of Detroit, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes. The fee, which is on the basic service, is slated to be used to improve communications.

Joseph Benyo, Westland City Council liaison, is among those opposing the fee.

Benyo, who launched the Enhanced 911 system in western Wayne County, noted that the emergency service was "sold to the community by telling them that it wouldn't cost any more than a quarter, and it hasn't."

The newly approved fee is expected to cost the average telephone subscriber about 48 center per month when it goes in effect next March.

"The Enhanced 911 system of western Wayne County has been a model through the state. They are doing a job Now, they say they need money to pay for 911 dispatchers to communicate with rescue personnel and to buy medical equipment. We already have that," Benyo said.

"Each city should handle that in their budgets," Benyo said adding that people should not be taxed without the opportunity to vote on it.

"Why should Westland people pay for Dearborn services. Where do you draw the line," Benyo asked. "If I wanted my street plowed, should someone in Garden City tell me I have to plow their street?"

Benyo said the new fee would cost more than double the amount currently charged for 911 services in western Wayne County.

Canton Township Public Safety Director John Santomauro said an 800 megahertz radio system is needed to upgrade communications in the area, and the dollars to install it are not available. He said the telephone surcharge would offset the costs of the system.

"It will only cost $3.50 to $4 per month, or $4 to $5 per year (per subscriber) and the good part of the legislation is that the money is earmarked to improve communications," the public safety director said. "Unless we have cross-frequency, we can't talk to other departments or our own cars if they are in other cities."

Daniel Gilmartin, executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW), coordinated the legislation on behalf of the local communities to ensure that funds would be allocated to area agencies.

Funds can be utilized for 911 related use only. Allowed uses for the funds, include upgrading current communications equipment, purchasing mobile communications equipment, purchasing or buying into an 800 megahertz system, paying dispatcher salaries and providing appropriate training for employees," said Gilmartin. "It is important to note that dispatchers are hired at annual salaries between $17,000 and $25,000. These jobs are also vitally important to a community's ability to provide a quality public safety program. In other words, these funds will not be used to pad the salaries of 'high-priced government employees' as some have contended," Gilmartin said.

Gilmartin noted that the funds cannot be used to purchase police or fire vehicles or to pay non-911 salaries.

"I think there is some confusion about the amount of the surcharge. Some people mistakenly believe that it is four percent of their total phone bill, not four percent of the basic rate," Gilmartin said. "Public safety is the number one issue, and we need to provide our public safety units with the ability to respond and to communicate with one another."

Detroit Edison sets line trim clearance

Detroit Edison line clearance crews have scheduled work in 29 communities in September and October as part of its $236 million service reliability improvement plan.

Communities that will be affected include Wayne, Inkster, Canton Township and Westland.

The accelerated tree trimming portion of the program has helped to bring about a sharp reduction in power outages.

During the last year, Detroit Edison has reduced the number of outages by 36 percent and shortened the length of those outages by 73 percent, compared with the average of the previous three years.

Line clearance crews trim trees to provide clearance from electric wires, helping to reduce the impact of storms on the utility electrical system.

Trees that touch energized lines can carry electricity and pose safety hazards. In addition, interference from just one tree can cause outages that affect hundreds of customers served by the same electrical circuit.

In a company survey of the 25 largest U.S. electric utilities, Detroit Edison tied for second in the fewest number of outages customers experienced last year. Detroit Edison customers had an average of .53 outages in 1993, topped only by Wisconsin Electric Power, whose customers averaged .44 outages.

"We're proud of the achievements we've made during the last three years," said Robert J. Buckler, senior vice president, energy, marketing and distribution.

All tree trimming work is performed by professional line-clearance crews. Trees are trimmed according to National Arborist Association standards which are designed.

Death threat
Severed cat head serves warning to activist

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The discovery of a severed cat's head and inflammatory threatening note, allegedly signed by the Ku Klux Klan, continues to be probed this weekend by Huron Township Police and other law enforcement authorities.

Because the target of the "head" message was R.P. Lilly, spokesperson for a Romulus citizen group battling the plans of Environmental Disposal Services to open the first commercial liquid injection well in the state, the incident has gained wide media attention.

Members of the citizens' group Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) alerted the media about 2 p.m. last Tuesday of the delivery of the cat's head and note threatening the lives of Lilly's wife, Helena, and the couple's grandchildren.

"I thought something had happened to the clothes I had put on our (ceramic) goose outside," she continued, "I was not prepared for what I was about to see."

Lilly immediately called the Huron Township Police and turned over the animal's head and a "vulgar, racially tinged and threatening letter" to Officer John Cady. He then met with Police Chief James Caygill, who ordered special police protection for the Lilly home.

The letter was composed of cut-up words pasted on a sheet of paper stating "RP Lilly, we are tired of you wasting our tax money, so you can be a slum lord. You are nothing more than a nigger loving hypocrite.

"It's time to retire for health reasons. If you show up at another council or zoning board meeting, next time we will deliver your wife's or one of your grandchildren's heads. KKK," the note concluded.

While not pointing any finger directly at EDS management, Lilly said he felt the message was related to his family's aggressive actions against the injection well proposal in Romulus.

Douglas Wicklund, EDS president, stated, "We are appalled by this incident and the cruelty in-

Local man faces assault examination

A Wayne man charged with three counts of third-degree criminal sexual conduct is expected to appear for an examination Sept. 14 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold.

Albert Elieo was arrested by Wayne police for allegedly sexually assaulting a Detroit woman at the Parklane Motel where he is residing, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews.

"He took the lady to the motel room where the incident took place," Drews said. "He has an extensive criminal record for this type of charge."

The defendant is in the Wayne County jail pending his examination. He was arraigned Sept. 5, and a $50,000 cash bond has been set.

Area man accused of sexual assault

A Wayne man charged with three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct was arraigned Sept. 7 before Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge Geraldine Bledsoe Ford.

Ronald James Holt, 19, allegedly assaulted a Wayne woman Aug. 14, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews. He was arraigned Aug. 15 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold, and a $100,000 cash bond was set.

"This is a case where the victim knew the defendant," Drews said. "She was the one who called the police with the complaint."

A not guilty plea was entered during the arraignment. The Aug. 24 examination was waived, and Holt was bound over to Recorder's Court.

If Holt is found guilty of all three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct, he could receive up to life in prison, according to Drews.

Pedestrian struck, killed on freeway

A 24-year-old Ypsilanti woman was stuck and killed on Interstate-94 in Van Buren Township last Saturday while walking along the freeway.

Police believe that the victim, Suzanne St. Amour, was stuck by at least two vehicles and a truck.

Officers at the Michigan State Police Flat Rock Post are investigating the incident.

Friends rally to assist family

When the Meadows' family began setting up for their benefit garage sale Tuesday morning, they were greeted with customers anxious to make purchases, and, in turn, relieve a financial burden from the survivors of 33-year-old Gary Meadows, who died from a streptococcus A infection in June.

"It's wonderful. Business has been good, and lots of people are buying all kinds of things," said Earl Mink of Belleville, stepfather of Gary Meadows. "We'll continue through Sept. 14, and it looks as if it will be a success."

Although the family is still struggling with the emotional burden inflicted by the untimely death of the 33-year-old Airborne Division veteran, the yard sale at the corner of Judd and Elwell roads in Sumpter Township will help to pay for the remainder of the funeral expenses still owed.

Budget plummeting
School district juggles $1.9 million deficit

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

The good news is Wayne-Westland School District residents may not be asked to pass a millage this fall - the bad news is the district is now $1.9 million in deficit for the 1994-95 school year and no relief is in site.

That deficit has increase $600,000 in the past two weeks with the release of special education program charge backs from Wayne County and the addition of district-funded breakfast programs at a cost of $50,000.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas announced his plans to recommend that board members rescind a recent resolution to conduct a millage election this fall asking for 3 mills during a two-year period. According to Thomas, any gain from that election could not be used until the 1995-96 school year anyway. Instead, Thomas said, he plans to recommend the board seek a millage increase in the spring of 1995.

"We can't levy any taxes this school year. The new state law doesn't allow us," Thomas said.

According to Thomas, since the district did not ask for a millage increase in 1994, state law does not permit any millage increase for this school year. Without a millage passage this year, Thomas said, any program cuts made will not be brought back in the near future.

"The cuts can't be restored even if a millage passes next year. We're looking at this for a few years. The next step will be to cut educational programs," Thomas said of future school years.

"I can't see us educating anyone else but general education students (in the future)," Board Secretary Vicky Welty said. "We've got to reorganize, but I don't know if the board is strong enough to do it."

Several board members and Thomas alike blame the district's financial disaster on past millage failures. When the 7.75 millage renewal request and Headlee Override failed, the district's millage rate dropped a total of 10 mills in 1993.

> "I can't see educating anyone else but general education students (in the future). We've got to reorganize, but I don't know if the board is strong enough to do it."

"Surrounding districts have the fund balance to use for foundation grants and charge backs. If it wasn't for the millage failure, we would not be making the cuts were making today," Thomas said.

If the board does not balance the budget this year, state aid payments will be taken away as well, Chief Fiscal Officer Patricia Brand said.

"The state took a hard line on this after Kalkaska. If need be, they will force a district to a break situation," Brand said.

According to Brand, with the current financial situation, the district would run out of cash flow by May 1995.

The charge back alone was $550,000 in excess of the $200,000 budgeted and that amount is only a portion of what the district owes. From the 1992-93 school year to date, the district anticipates an additional $4.6 million in charge backs. Proposed cost payment includes paying $750,000 this year and 20 percent of the debt over the next three years.

Board members previously chastised Detroit for not producing a more accurate projected cost for their special education programs. However, Brand added, "I don't think

Area cab driver robbed

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It wasn't the first time, and probably not the last time, that a cab driver has faced a hostile patron.

But Joseph T. Price, a Wayne-based cab driver, had to contend with two fares who not only attempted to pay for their ride with fake currency, but robbed him of his receipts for the evening.

> The second man handed the cab driver a couple of bills, which the driver said, looked bogus.

One of the robbers then drove off in the victim's cab, which was later recovered by Inkster police.

Price told police that he picked up the fares at the Twin Towers Apartment Complex, located on Michigan Ayenue, late at night. He said the men, both approximately 30, asked him to drive them to a party store located on Middlebelt Road.

Price drove the men to the store, and one of them got out. The second man handed the cab driver a couple of bills, which the driver said, looked bogus. When Price challenged the man and asked for his money, he said he was told to shut up and threatened.

The fare then produced a weapon and ordered the driver to hand over his cash. Price said that he managed to leap from the vehicle and ran from the scene.

The robber then drove off in the car, a 1989 Chevy Caprice, which police recovered later in the New York and Inkster Road area.

Inkster Detective James Vergona, who is in charge of the investigation, said that there are no suspects "at this time."

Police said that they didn't know whether the second man was an accomplice. They would, however, like to talk to him to see what his involvement, if any, in the alleged robbery.

Anyone with information should contact Vergona at 563-9856.

Police investigate assault of 17-year-old woman

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Accepting - or offering - rides to a stranger can be dangerous, if not fatal, crime statistics indicate.

That fact, unfortunately, turned into a true-life drama for a 17-year- old Inkster girl who made the near-fatal mistake of apparently asking for a lift to her home.

The girl told Inkster police that she was brutally beaten and allegedly sexually assaulted after she accepted a ride in the city of Inkster.

According to the police report, the victim was on her way home from a friend's home and was about to place a call home from a pay telephone on Middlebelt Road near Birchwood Street when a man drove up.

Police said that the teen apparently knew the driver and asked if he would drive her home. He agreed.

Once in the lot, the suspect ordered the girl to disrobe, and when she refused he struck her arcoss the face serveral times, according to the police report.

However, instead of driving in the direction of her home, he headed northbound on Middlebelt Road, then suddenly turned the car into a school parking lot on Parkwood Street.

Once in the lot, the suspect ordered the girl to disrobe, and when she refused he struck her across the face several times, according to the police report.

The victim told police that the culprit then preceded to tear the clothing from her body and sexually assaulted her. The victim was conveyed to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne for treatment.

On Thursday, Inkster Detective Gary C. Lorenzen said that an 18-year- old local man has been arrested and charged with criminal sexual assault, fourth-degree. The suspect faces a preliminary exam at 9 a.m. on Wednesday in 22nd District Court.

Lorenzen said that there are conflicting reports on "what actually happened in this case. But as it stands at this time, we do have a suspect in custody who will have to answer to the charge."

A fist fight between teenagers escalated to vehicular assault when the car driven by a 19-year-old Westland man struck his opponent thrusting him against the windshield face first.

David Douglas Barr was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court on charges of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, a felony punishable up to 10 years in prison. Barr was released on a $5,000 personal bond pending his next court date with the stipulation he have no contact with the 17-year-old victim.

Brian Warner of Inkster was struck by Barr's automobile when he was standing on the grass adjacent to 300 Henry Ruff Road, according to Westland police.

The victim was transported to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne where he was treated for severe lacerations to his head and face and minor lacerations to his arm.

The alleged incident occurred around 7:30 p.m. July 9 after the victim and his friend has been involved in a fight with Barr and the passenger of his vehicle, an 18-year-old Belleville man, at a Garden City Park carnival, according to testimony taken during preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court.

The two former classmates bumped into each other at the carnival and Barr and his friend asked Warner and one of the other four men with him if they wanted to fight.

"They walked right through the middle of us," Warner testified.

A fist fight ensued and within minutes police arrived and dispersed the men from the scene. As Warner and his friend were walking southbound on Henry Ruff en route to a girlfriend's house, the two encountered Barr and the Belleville man again at Titus Elementary School.

Defense attorney Creighton Adams said his client was acting in self- defense.

it's fair to blame Detroit. They run a cheaper program. They deserve the payback."

With the large center program debt, some board members questioned whether bussing the students to outside districts would save money.

"Even if we sent our kids to Livonia, we still have to pay our own charge back," Gary Quitiquit, district executive director of student services, said. "There are no buildings you could close if you're not running the center programs," Brand added.

Currently there are some 500 students enrolled in these programs and 240 who attend outside district programs. According to Board President Mathew McCusker, the increase in center program students comes from the recent closing of nursing homes and the transference of these individuals to group homes and the local schools.

"We believe we can close buildings and be more effecitve, but the board has to do that and we can't do it until next year."

Dr. Larry Thomas

A decrease in anticipated student population, which is projected at 15,500, would also cause further cuts, according to Thomas. The final count will be made the fourth Friday of the school year.

Along with the cuts, the board will be updated on the redistricting plan Monday - a plan some believe will significantly cut costs.

"We believe we can close buildings and be more effective, but the board has to do that and we can't do it until next year," Thomas said.

"If we close buildings, we have to close them now," McCusker said of the 1995-96 school year. "Otherwise those opposed to the closings have time to come up with reasons not to close them. The only way to save money is to get rid of people."

Some cutback ideas include transportation, administrative positions, parking lot security, evening adult education program, central office receptionists, vocational teaching assistants, reduction of building supplies, and elimination of the school improvement program. Deficit spending was another option presented to the board, but Thomas added that he did not recommend this action.

Thomas said his cabinet "wholeheartedly" recommended the elimination of transportation with the option for an enhancement millage. However, several citizens expressed were against cutting transportation.

"I just have serious concerns about the children being asked to walk in the snow from Inkster this winter. You're asking them to walk four miles and I think that's betrayal," Wayne resident Jim Netter said.

Inkster resident and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) president Arthur Wood said Inkster residents are still paying the debt millage to the district and yet, with transportation cuts, would suffer the most.

"We're going to organize and fight this," Wood said.

An evaluation of the district's current transportation situation revealed that if students were required to live at least 1.5 miles from the school, instead of just one mile, the district could save $168,000, according to Brand.

Cuts in transportation would effect approximately 5,000 of the district's students and would make any possible redistricting very difficult, Thomas said. Thomas added that special education students would still have transportation despite any cuts.

With a fund balance of less than $3,000, board members were aware of the possible shortage of funds when they approved the 1994-95 budget in early July. The first budget drafted under the new state finance reform bill left the district with a fund balance of $2,965, millions less than the starting fund balance of $6,762,382 from the previous year.

volved. We are saddened by this latest example of how far people are willing to go in order to further their point of view.

"EDS will be contacting the Huron Township Police Department with an offer of a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the individual(s) responsible for this act of animal cruelty, which has offended the entire community," Wicklund said.

John Ryznar, owner of the property the deep well is currently located on, also said he was shocked by the incident.

"We have grandchildren too," a Ryznar family spokeswoman said, "and we too are opposed to any such conduct."

Caygill revealed Friday that the letter had been sent to the Michigan State Police lab in Northville for tests. His department also notified the local office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the incident.

Despite the threat, Lilly attended the council meeting last Tuesday and said his family had taken abuse in stride earlier (such as carpenter tacks in his drive-way, etc.), but called the latest incident "the ultimate in low life tactics."

While Lilly said he had no idea who would pull such a stunt, he asked Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks if he could read the contents of the letter to the public.

Banks agreed, but said since "this is still a public meeting, I would urge you to edit out the profanity portion of it."

After reading the letter, Lilly stressed to the unknown senders "you have not deterred my actions...in fact they will only get stronger."

Banks added "no one deserves to receive this kind of material."

Long time citizen activist and former council candidate Mary Collins rose to condemn the actions.

Speaking in tones that continually broke with emotion, Collins said she "was emotionally upset that something like this could happen here.

"I've had my character assassinated in political campaigns in the past, but even I have never suffered as severely as Mr. and Mrs. Lilly did today," Collins continued.

"We (RECAP members) are all family and when you attack one of us, you attack all of us," she said in trembling tones.

Another RECAP member Ramona Underwood told the council "I now feel obligated to stand up and talk. I was a very quiet person for many years, but those days are over. We need to continue to stress the truth about this well issue."

Romulus Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron, and also son-in-law of environmental well property owner Ryzner, told Lilly after the council meeting, he regretted the incident also.

Bergeron said "my son's tires also were slashed."

The incident last week was the latest in a series of police reports given by both sides of the well issue in recent months.

"Because he was so young and in such good health, Gary didn't think about getting insurance, so we had to come up with the funeral costs," said Mink. "We received some donations and the $7,100 bill was reduced to $5,400."

Proceeds of a community yard sale, staged two weeks ago, further reduced the bill to approximately $3,400, Mink said.

"I know that my wife won't rest until she pays that bill," he said.

Prior to being stuck with the streptococcus A bacteria, dubbed the flesh-eater, Gary Meadows was a healthy young man in the prime of his life, according to his family. But, that all changed one day in June when he was bicycle riding with his three children and scrapped his knee in a fall.

He entered the hospital on July 6, two days after the accident complaining of nausea, dehydration and pain in his right leg. At first, the medical staff at the Veterans Administration in Ann Arbor did not know what was causing the symptoms. Later, when it was identified as a streptococcus A bacteria, it was too late to save the young veteran.

"After the diagnosis was made, we had to don masks and special clothing to go into Gary's room," his stepfather said. "The disease must be treated within 72 hours. The bacteria destroys tissue at a rate of one inch an hour and only surgery can stop it."

Mink said his stepson's leg was amputated and other tissue cut from his body in an unsuccessful attempt to stop the infection.

"A doctor flew to Ann Arbor with a serum to treat the infection, but he arrived too late."

Because of the victim's prior good health, it was difficult for Gary Meadows to accept the prognosis when the medical staff explained the seriousness of the infection, Mink said.

"Really, none of us could believe that this would happen to someone so young and healthy," Meadows' stepfather said.

In addition to three young children, his mother and stepfather, the deceased is survived by five siblings and many relatives living in the Belleville and Ypsilanti area.

Canton grandmother makes room for all

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Dorothy Salois is saving a spot on her refrigerator for the newest addition to her family, expected in November. That is where the Canton Township woman proudly displays photos of her 25 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Salois and her late husband, Michael, had seven children of their own, down from the larger families she had known growing up. Today, her "young ones" are spread throughout the country enjoying grandchildren of their own.

"I have children in California, Arizona, New Mexico and here," said the Canton grandmother. "They were all raised in Michigan, but work took them their separate ways."

Luckily for Salois, one of her granddaughters works for American Airlines and she is eligible for the family discounts.

"I get to fly a lot and I have a lot of places to go," she said.

Unable to get the whole family together at one time, Salois flies to the West Coast at least once a year, travels to Alabama a couple times a year and frequents Florida, where she can relax from the Michigan winters.

"We're pretty family-oriented," said the woman, "and although I never get to see them together, I do get to see everybody once a year. They grow up so fast though."

Fiftieth birthdays are a time when the whole group makes a special effort to meet in one place, according to Salois, who recently spent her 85th birthday in Las Vegas with some family members.

"On my 75th birthday, my family took me up in a hot-air balloon," she said with a smile, "and they promised me a ride in a blimp on my 90th birthday."

Raised in Oregon, Salois calls herself a gypsy at heart.

"Some people are content staying here (in the Canton Place), but it is not for me," said the Canton woman who plans to travel and experience life to the fullest. "Although, we can't always do what we want because of money."

The local grandmother said she never planned how big her family would get.

"I never gave it much thought, because my grandmother had 14 children and my husband's side is very fertile," she said. "We have a very loving family, and everyone is very good to me."

Salois loves being a grandmother and great-grandmother. She always commemorates every birthday and anniversary with a card.

Despite her seniority, Salois said part of her popularity with the children may rest in the fact that she does not push advice on other people.

"I don't believe in butting in," she said. "They all run their own lives. One of the problems today is some people who are older believe they know everything.

"I must be doing something right," she continued, "because I seem to be loved by all of them."

Marilyn Korotney has a special bond with her granddaughter, Tomari Lyn Komora, whose name is a dedication to her - to Mari-lyn.

Understandably, the precocious 6-year-old and the longtime Sumpter Township administrative aide are the best of friends, and also bear a striking resemblance to one another.

"She says and does so many cute things that it's hard to think of any one special thing to tell," said Korotney.

Tomari was a special guest at the Sumpter Township Hall in 1993 when the first Take Our Daughters to Work Day was observed. She helped her grandmother answer the telephone and performed clerical duties for her. At the time, she listed her career goals, including computer work.

"The best thing she says to me is that she loves me, and she tells me that all the time," said Korotney.

After taking trips with her grandmother to Gatlinburg, Tenn., in the heart of the Smoky Mountains, Tomari loves the popular vacation spot.

"She tells me that it is OK for her to miss school so that she can go to Gatlinburg, and she keeps asking me when are we going to go again," Korotney said.

Tomari, who celebrated her sixth birthday on July 21, loves to play computer games, according to her grandmother.

She is currently atteding Lincoln School.

Grandparents Day

Youngsters honor elders

Although it is a recently established holiday, Grandparents Day is quickly becoming a day of special celebration and observance for youngsters and their grandparents.

The second Sunday in September has been designated as Grandparents Day - an occasion to highlight the special bond between the generations.

Today, at a time when society is recognizing the importance of family life, it is especially fitting that a special day has been set aside to honor grandparents and the special bond that ties them to the new generation.

It is more than a day to present cards, candy, flowers or gifts. It is a time to recognize the loving and caring feelings between the generations and to encourage grandparents and grandchildren to continue to enrich their relationships - for the benefit of both generations.

For Pat Dunn, marketing manager for Westchester Towers in Wayne, her three grandchildren continue to keep her young at heart.

Dunn has two granddaughters, Cortney Koen, 10, and Genna Pierson, 2, and one grandson, Max Pierson, 4. She said she enjoys spending time with each of her loved ones.

"I enjoy spending time with Cortney because she can come to my house and stay over night, and we can go to a show together," Dunn said. "We also like to go to Pizza Hut."

Dunn said her grandson is very special because he is the first boy in the family.

"Because we never had a boy in our family, it is a new experience to have a little boy that brings home bugs and other things little boys just love to collect," Dunn said. "He is very precious to me."

Dunn said her youngest grandchild, Genna, reminds her of her own children when they were growing up.

"It's like having my own (children) back again with Genna around," Dunn said. "I'm very happy because all of my grandchildren live close to me. We see each other all the time, and that's very important to me."

Hawaiian dancing class bonds generations

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Westland resident Eline Moreno knows the best way to bond with her grandchildren is to find similar interests.

She's done that with her granddaughter Erin Moreno, a 5-year-old who just recently started school in the Wayne-Westland area. The youngster is one of Moreno's seven grandchildren ranging from 3 to adults. Two of her oldest are in the U.S. Marine Corps and another attends a Catholic school.

Moreno joined the Westland Senior Resources Friendship Center Hawaiian Dance group about a year ago and introduced her granddaughter to the graceful dance steps last month.

Moreno said she never envisioned herself taking dance lessons although she confesses she's always loved to dance.

"I never thought I'd learn how to dance, let alone at age 65," Moreno said.

Like her grandmother, Erin Moreno likes to get down when she hears tunes on the radio. The two attend class once a week and have learned such Hawaiian dances as Bora Bora, Little Brown Cow and Lovely Hula Hands.

Moreno commended their dance instructor Kamoa Ferris, adding that it was Ferris who introduced her to the activities at the Friendship Center and encouraged her to join the dance class.

Romulus grandmother opens heart to grandchild from Dominican Republic

Clariece Kranick of Romulus loves her latest grandchild, Rosita, a native of the Dominican Republic.

Kranick said her son, Harold, and his wife, Cecelia, served more than three years with the Peace Corps and fell in love with many children throughout the hemisphere.

After getting married, they decided they wanted to adopt some children who needed parents and lots of love, Kranick said.

They decided on young Rosita, when she was only seven months and now she is a robust 5-year-old, who loves to ice skate with her dad and is learning to play the piano with her mother.

Rosita and her father are both bilingual, the proud grandmother states, and the family is involved in many artistic lifestyles.

"What excites me most about Rosita," Kranick said "is the improvement she has had since she was adopted. She faced many limitations if she had stayed in the Dominican Republic and probably would have remained in an orphanage until she was 12, if my son's family had not adopted her."

Now, instead, she faces a life with many opportunities.

There is a possibility other children may join their household in the near future.

Kranick has two grown grandchildren, Carl and Daniel, sons of her daughter, Deanna Lovenduski. They, in turn, have presented her with five great-grandchildren, Jason, Kristin, Megan, Andrew and Kaitlyn.

The candidate said she'd rather focus on the positive aspects of her campaign, rather than the negative aspects of her opponents.

"You're only going to get what you work hard for," DeHart advised.

A Westland resident for the past 28 years, DeHart has two children, three step-children and five grandchildren.

Former assistant to current 18th District State Representative Justine Barns, DeHart feels she has the training and experience and can best represent the citizens of Westland.

The longtime resident said she was not surprised with the work involved in running for office.

"It's what I have experienced doing for so many years for other candidates," DeHart said of her first campaign.

Woman charged with marijuana possession

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A 44-year-old Westland woman, in whose home some 152 ounces of marijuana was found, was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court on charges of possession with intent to deliver marijuana.

Debra Joy Mack, a married resident and mother of four, was arrested after selling marijuana to Livonia police officers, who are part of a special narcotics investigative unit.

Livonia police officer Duane Cole testified that he executed the search warrant at the woman's home on the 1900 block of Mel Court around 8 p.m. March 31.

"I heard screaming when I came to the house," Cole said, adding that he let himself in when no one came to the door.

Upon entry, the officer found 16, 8-ounce bags of marijuana in the top dresser drawer, two scales and empty plastic baggies.

"Persons that traffic in controlled substances have to weigh them out prior to sale," Cole testified.

Further search of the home revealed four similar packages in the adjacent bedroom dresser drawer which were later determined to weigh approximately 6.13 ounces each, according to testimony. In the same drawer, the officer found 6 hand-rolled cigarettes.

"The house was in a great state of disarray. Clothes were thrown about the floor. If any people were staying in the (adjacent) room, they would've been sleeping on the floor," Cole said.

Defense attorney George Dovas argued that police obtained the warrant after receiving information from an informant about the sales.

"I would like to request an adjournment. I have a question as to the informant's reliability," Dovas said.

However, 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos denied the request, "The warrant is not based on the informant. The officers went inside and purchased some marijuana and came back out. That's certainly sufficient."

If convicted of the offense, Mack faces up to four years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine.

Police investigate assault complaint

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

Canton Township police are investigating the allegations of a Westland youth against her father.

The 15-year-old girl, accompanied by her mother, walked into the police department Sept. 1 claiming that her 38-year-old father had sexually assaulted her several times over a two-year period, police said. The girl alleged the incidents began shortly before her parents divorce in October, 1990.

According to police, the girl said the alleged incidents started in the family home in Redford, but occurred in her grandparents' Canton Township home following the divorce.

Police reports of the incident indicate the alleged assaults began with caresses in the genital area.

Police reports of the incident indicate the alleged assaults began with caresses in the genital area. Then after a period of time, the Berkley man reportedly asked the girl to follow him into the bedroom, remove her clothing and lay on top of him, authorities said.

The victim told police her father attempted to have intercourse with her on three different occasions, but stopped when she began to cry from the pain. The girl also accused her father of asking for oral sex.

Although she indicated that she feared her father, the girl decided to come forward despite the threats out of concern for her 7-year-old sister.

The victim was told by her father that if she told anyone she would get into trouble, because the family would fall apart, police said.

According to the mother, the man could have a history of sexual assault against children. Just before the divorce, the man's brother allegedly confronted him about assaulting his niece (brother's daughter), she told authorities.

In exchange for not filing charges, the man allegedly told his brother that he would seek counseling. The ex-wife said he has received psychiatric care in the past.

The victim's mother indicated that she had called the grandparents and informed them about the accusations. They were shocked and denied any knowledge of the alleged incidents, cite police reports.

Protective Services is also looking into the claims.

The mother told police both girls are currently in counseling, and the younger child has not exhibited any signs of assault.

Area man receives probation in stabbing

After pleading to a reduced charge of felonious assault for stabbing another man three times over a $5 wager, a 39-year-old Westland man was sentenced to three years of probation and six months in an alcohol rehabilitation center.

The Westland man was sentenced by Detroit Recorder's Judge Wendy Braxton.

Clayborn Douglas Dean was originally charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm, a crime punishable by up to 10 years in prison. His bond was set at $50,000 cash after threatening the victim following an 18th District Court preliminary examination in early March. In court, Dean pointed to the victim and said, "I'll get you," as he was being escorted to lock-up, according to court officer David Gillies.

The stabbing occurred on Feb. 17 when the 31-year-old victim was invited into Dean's home, located on the 32600 block of Menominee Street in Westland. According to the victim, Kenneth Holt of Wayne,

"I was stabbed in my love handles, which now I called my lifesavers."

the two met each other through a mutual friend and decided to wager $5 that Holt would not drive Dean's car to a nearby gas station without a license plate affixed to the vehicle.

Holt took the bet, drove the car to the gas station and paid $5 for gasoline, he testified. When they returned to Dean's home, the victim confronted Dean about the $5 he was owed for the wager. According to testimony, Dean did not pay the $5 and when Holt came toward him, the two began to wrestle in the living room.

Sometime during the wrestling match, Dean stabbed the victim with a four-inch blade, once in the back and in both of his sides, Holt testified.

"I was stabbed in my love handles, which now I called my lifesavers," the victim testified as he pointed to his sides.

Woman runs over boyfriend with car

By JENNIFER PLACINTO

A Lincoln Park woman, who was tired of arguing with her fiancee, apparently ran him over with her vehicle in the Farmer Jack parking lot, located on South Merriman Road at Cherry Hill, Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

The 22-year-old victim, a Romulus resident, was not seriously injured despite the fact that the front and rear car wheels ran over his buttocks, Stobbe said, and no chargess were brought against the 24-year-old woman.

"He spent the night in the hospital and she spent the night at the station. He came to the police station and decided not to press charges. They left arm and arm," Stobbe said, adding that the two still plan to marry.

The incident followed an argument which erupted between the two at 5:15 p.m. Sept. 4 while the woman was on her lunch break at Burger King, located at 120 Merriman Road in Westland.

Her fiance entered the location and began to argue with the woman, claiming she was unfaithful and shoving her, Stobbe said.

Protect environment from vehicle hazardous wastes

Recycling is not just an activity for the household. Vehicles contains many components which can be harmful to our environment - car batteries, tires, oil and air conditioning refrigerant.

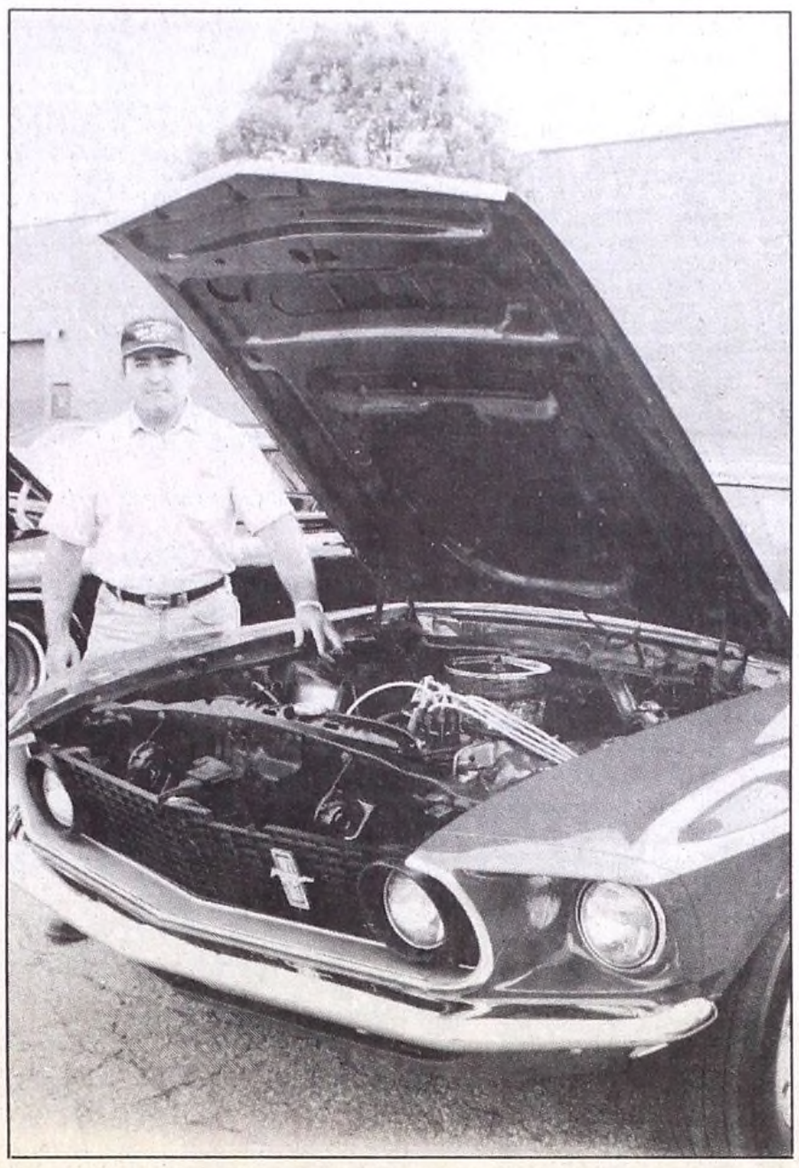
"Responsible recycling can help protect the Earth for future generations," said Jerry Basch, community safety services manager for AAA Michigan.

The auto club spokesman recommends the following steps to properly recycle various automotive components which can be harmful:

• Air conditioning. By the end of 1994, virtually all new cars, trucks and vans will be equipped with HFC-134a air conditioning systems, which do not adversely affect the ozone layer of the planet. However, vehicles wit CFC-12 air conditioning systems will require preventive maintenance and recycling to prevent unnecessary leakage. Mechanics can use a machine to pull the refrigerant from the air conditioner into a holding tank where it is filtered for reuse.

• Lead Batteries. By recycling old lead batteries, its components can be used again in the manufacture of new batteries and other useful products. Check with your local municipality for rules and regulations on used battery disposal.

• Used oil. Nearly 60 percent of the automotive oil is changed by consumers themselves. Americans who change their own oil throw away 120 million gallons of recoverable motor oil by dumping it on the ground, pouring it down storm drains or by putting it in trash cans. Recycling this oil would save the nation 1.3 million barrels of oil per day. Many communities have special drop-off sites for used oil



Westland resident Frank Candela checks out his 1969 classic Mustang.

• Used tires. The majority of used tires are left at the retail site when new tires are purchased. If you have a tire or two that you wish to dispose of, take them back to the retailer where you bought them. Tire retailers typically charge between $1 to $1.25 to dispose of used tires.

Hudson's restaurant pleases the palates of shoppers

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

They're tired, they're cranky and they're hungry...but when shoppers leave the restaurant at Hudson's in Westland Center, it's invariably with a smile.

Since 1965, the Westland Hudson's has continued the tradition of the Hudson's store, and offered good-quality food for a good price. "That's why people come in," noted manager Cathy Randazzo. "We have a great atmosphere and excellent service."

From salads to pasta to grilled items, customers can get it all Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and from noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

"We also offer a full bar, desserts, cappuccino and espresso," she said.

Despite their varied menu, the most popular item continues to be the Maurice Salad, a combination of iceberg lettuce topped with ham, turkey, Swiss cheese, sweet pickles and secret-recipe dressing.

"We sell at least 300 of these salads a week," said Randazzo, "to shoppers, mall employees and community business people."

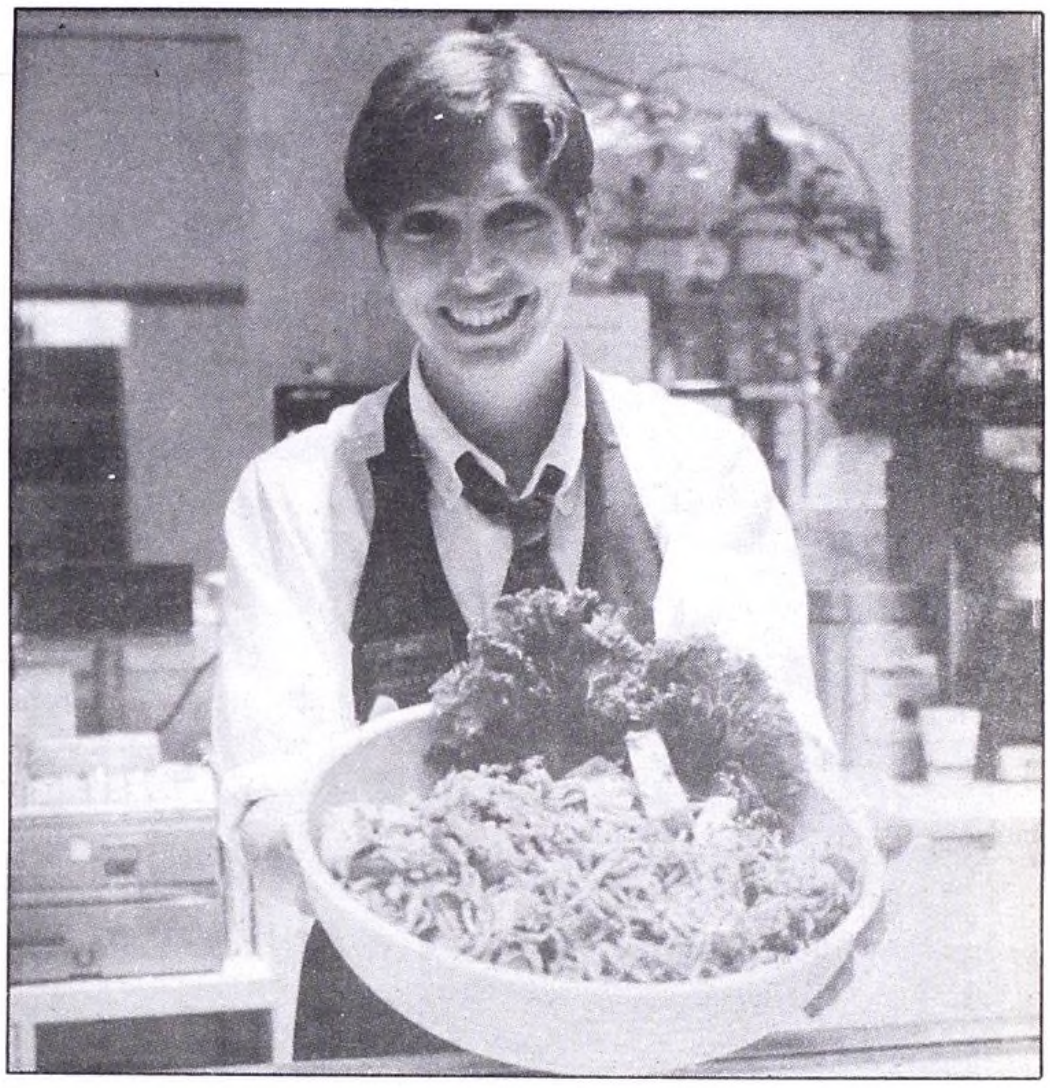
According to the manager, customer traffic depends largely on the retail business, but people looking for a quick bite to eat can satisfy their taste buds here for a reasonable price. "It costs between $4.95 and $7.95 for a meal," she said.

Recent additions to the menu include: an Italian submarine sandwich, country-fried steak, and a Cobb Salad sandwich served on sourdough flat bread.

The restaurant offers a special entree, soup and sandwich, drink and dessert every day, in addition to the Sanders hot fudge sundaes, cream puffs and pastries. A full bar is available and many area residents have found this a terrific place to have dinner, without shopping.

For a limited time, VIP card holders can receive a second entree for half price when an entree of equal or greater value is purchased.

The restaurant is located on the second level, above Hudson's retail store and can be entered up the stairway or directly off the elevator. For more information call 458-5560.



One of the new items available for take-out at Hudson's restaurant is Marco Polo salad.
